THE CYCLONE.

How This Wonderful and Destructive Air Fury is Formed.

To get an idea of a cyclone's formation imagine a large circular pan or tub with quite a large hole in the middle of the bottom. With this hole plugged, fill the vessel with water, then draw out the plug and watch. There is first a rush of water from all directions toward the hole and a turbulent effort to get through; then the water surface above begins to sink and swirl, the particles gradually circling around and around and rushing ever faster, toward the center. At last there is actually a hollow space through the center, around which all the water in the tub is whirling sluggishly near the rim, but with more and more violent rapidity toward the middle until it rushes downward through the bottom. Now, if that water were air you would be watching a little cyclone turned upside down, for the air rushes upward instead of downward.

In the cradle of cyclones during the summer months, when the land and the water grow hotter and hotter because of the longer days than nights, a layer of air, hot, light and full of vapor, is for a time held down by denser air above it. Restless, expanding, tumultuous, it moves about like a beast at bay until a thinner place in the air above is found; then up it madly rushes, and into the vacuum left behind the lower atmosphere hastens from all directions, pushing and twisting and pouring upward until it has fallen into a regular spinning around a common center.

The cyclone, once formed, rushes away from the tropics toward the pole and begins its career of destruction, bruising, wrecking and sinking the luckless ships which happen to be in its path. More and more of the surrounding atmosphere is drawn into the whirl until the storm often covers an area nearly 1,000 miles in diameter. Sometimes it flings itself upon our Atlantic coast and tears fiercely through forests, fields and cities. Then, again, it sweeps away across the broad ocean and dashes itself upon the coasts of Europe. Once in a while it so adroitly avoids the land that we never know it has passed until ships come in torn and broken.—St. Nicholas.

Children in Pain
never cry as do children who are suffering from hunger. Such is the cause of all baby's who cry and are treated for sickness, when they really are suffering from hunger. This is caused from their food not being assimilated but devoured by worms. A few doses of White's Cream Vermifuge will cause them to cease crying and begin to thrive at once. Give it a trial. Sold by W. A. D'Alemberte.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.
The oil from sardines is good for fish cakes instead of using butter. Make a knife quite hot and it will cut hot cakes and hot bread easily. A metal or silver spoon in a glass will prevent its cracking if hot liquid is put in. Keep lids tightly shut on tea and coffee pots, as flavor and strength evaporate. If your hands smell after peeling onions, rub them well with a piece of raw celery. Old silk handkerchiefs and finger napkins make good dusters for china, glass and brack-brack. Put walnuts into cold water for a few minutes directly the shell is off them. The skin should then come off easily. The yolk of an egg will dry quickly if left exposed to the air, but if dropped into a cup of cold water it will keep a couple of days.

Screens For the Kitchen.
The kitchen may be made into an attractive room for the maid to spend her evenings in by the use of screens. These are put in front of the range and the sink, shutting them off from view most completely.

When the sink is in a small alcove a simple and pretty way of disguising it lies in putting a curtain rod across from wall to wall of the alcove, hanging from this rod, which is quite high, a dainty white curtain, with heavier side curtains of a pretty dark color.

This is a better way to shut it off than any other, as it gives the effect of a window and alters the whole look of the room.

ART IN SPUN SUGAR.
Baskets Made For Serving Candy and Ices More Elaborate Than Ever.

Spun candy has never been spun into such beautiful baskets for ice cream or candies as this season. The candy spinner has reduced his art to perfection. For a number of years spun candy baskets have been a popular method of serving ices or candies at luncheons and dinners. But this year a greater daring in novelty of design and beauty of workmanship has glorified the spun candy basket into a positive work of art. All baskets are adorned with flowers.

"My customers stop to look at them as they would at beautiful real flowers," says a baker who goes in for confectionery.

Candy spinning is hand work. One feels this in looking at the baskets, for they have none of the stereotyped look of work done otherwise. Even baskets made to be alike have little differences. High luster and exquisite coloring are characteristics of the baskets. None of the coloring used dulls the luster. The coloring follows close to nature. The great La France roses which are done so remarkably well this year would not suffer by comparison with the real thing held next to them. The same is true of the purple orchids, which have caught the real orchid shades almost to perfection.

One basket to be used as a general serving dish is a great white garden hat trimmed with a big white plume, clusters of purple orchids and bows
